

Welcome to Day 2 of

Tnano
2020 !

As you remember, we are virtually broadcasting from Tbilisi, capital of the Republic of Georgia, where the workshop had been planned initially.

Yesterday was great ...
we expect today to be likewise

- I hope that all of you agree that day 1 of Tnano20 was spectacular:
 - Science was great
 - There were no major glitches (except for losing the internet connection to Igor Popov).
- Cutting-edge research is being reported:
 - Please remember: some results are unpublished and confidential
 - Please keep confidential what you learned in confidence in this workshop

Remember the rules

- Time limitations for invited talks:
 - 30 minutes presentation + 15 minutes discussion (This is incorrect. It disagrees with the info in the program. 35' + 10' is correct. An honest mistake by the organizer!)
 - This is a workshop, where discussion is the lifeblood!
 - If you wish more discussion, we can have it:
October 7, 12:00-13:00 UTC (before talk I33)
- email the organizer early!
- I am the gate keeper of Tnano20 and try to keep hackers out
 - Please do NOT SHARE Zoom links
(prevent leaking of confidential information)
 - I will consider not registered participants to be hackers
and will exclude them (Get out!)

Let's now begin day 2

- I will again use the inflatable huge hammer (nothing to do with the U.S. President) and start

DAY 2 of the
TNANO20 WORKSHOP
